"We have ignition!" It always sounded so simple when they said it at Mission Control in Houston, or even before that at Cape Canaveral (or Cape Kennedy as it was known for a while). But it didn't work all that easily for the budding young Robert Goddard and Werner von Braun's at Lake Shore Junior High School last week when the Lake Shore Rocket Club held its last launchings of the year. We don't know whether club sponsor John George's group was the most successful club at the junior high school this year but for a few moments the rocketeers were definitely the flashiest as first one and then another rode a pillar of smoke into the air to the accompaniment of a chorus of "Ahhhh's" and parachuted back to earth. And if Osvaldo Navarro, Brian Shade and Darrell Flintroy, who provided the hardware that day, had trouble getting ignition from their engines, they were able to do what the scientists at NASA haven't done yet. They lofted the same rocket twice within a few minutes.

Union petition filed

Members of the Belle Glade Fire Department took action Tuesday to force the city to recognize International Firefighters Association Local 2476 as the bargaining agent for the city's firefighters.

Local President Warren Street said he mailed a petition to the Public Employee Relations Commission (PERC) in Tallahassee. The petition doesn't require the approval of the city commission and Street said the action came as a result of the commission's stance Monday night.

Before taking up the subject of the union during its regular session Monday, the commission resolved to hire Alley & Alley, Chartered of Miami and Tampa, to represent the city as labor counsel.

On the recommendation of City Attorney John Baker, the commission authorized a meeting between union officials with City Manager George Knoblock and John Alley.

"We have met with Mr. Alley several times in the past," Union staff representative Charles Koush said, "and it's proven a frustrating process. I believe a meeting with him would be fruitless."

Koush said he felt it would be better for the union to appeal directly to PERC for recognition.

Obviously upset about the decision to hire Alley & Alley, Koush said he had agreed to delay two weeks so as to give the city commission an opportunity to change its mind. But he said he had already mailed the petition to PERC and had also written a letter telling Alley & Alley the union is still agreeable to meeting with the city and is agreeable to changing its petition of the city decides to recognize the union as bargaining agent.

He made it clear, however, the petition now is being taken without the approval of the city and only recognition by the city will change the nature of it. "This won't stop the union from being recognized," Street said Tuesday. "It just means things will be slowed down and it'll cost the city the price of the attorney fees."

A PERC spokesman said that without the city's approval, the union can be recognized through a process which includes an election, a public hearing and consideration by the PERC board.

He said the petition would have to show interest in the union by 30 per cent of the eligible employees. Seven of the ten eligible city firemen are already listed as members of the union.

He went on to say the union could be recognized in a matter of days if the city approves. But the matter could be months in the works without city approval.

Koush said the firefighters already have locals in approximately 90 cities throughout the state, as well as hundreds of others in other states in the nation.

Belle Glade updating Civil Service records

An all-out effort to update the Belle Glade Civil Service system, which could mean the classification or re-classification of more than 100 employees, could be finished by August according to City Personnel Director Ron Malmberg.

The problem, according to City Manager George Knoblock, is that the Civil Service records were woefully behind when he came to work for Belle Glade.

Knoblock said there were city employees who had never taken the appropriate examinations when they were hired by the city and there were also a number of employees serving in capacities for which they have never been certified.

He said the Civil Service Board will have the final say on how the employees will be certified but added that employees obviously qualified to perform their present jobs, and who have been doing those jobs for more than six months, won't be placed on probation.

It is customary for city employees to be placed on six months probation when they're hired and again any time they're put into a different type of position.

Knoblock said the city averages a total of 287 employees, most of whom come under Civil Service. Malmberg said 10 of those have been notified they are serving in one capacity while being certified for a 1st position and 72 (as of April 1) have never been tested at all but should have been.

In addition, he said there are 42 unskilled workers now employed who would not now come under Civil Service. There is a possibility some or all of those employees may be brought under the protective umbrella by the Civil Service Board.

Other city employees who don't come under the civil service benefits, according to Knoblock, are city commissioners, the city manager, the city manager's secretary and the public works director.

Knoblock said he has sent letters to every employee effected by the project, letting them know precisely where they stand. He said many of those employees may have believed they were holding their positions on a permanent basis when they weren't.

Civil Service was originally set up for the protection of the employees and the city," Knoblock said, with the purpose of getting politics out of city personnel matters.

He stressed that the administration isn't "gun-happy for anybody" and that the letters shouldn't be taken to mean the employees' positions are in any danger.

Celebration is Monday

City gets $5,000 for Will Museum

With the Belle Glade celebration of the nation's Bicentennial coming up Monday, another reason to celebrate was given Tuesday by a $5,000 grant made by the Palm Beach County Commission.

The commission approved the aid, which is going toward the construction of the new Lawrence E. Will Museum which will be dedicated Monday as part of the festival being planned for city residents.

Belle Glade Bicentennial Committee chairman Dolly Hand and members Ruth Wedgworth, Charles Ward and Tom Altman heard the commission vote 4-0 in the absence of E. W. "Bud" Weaver to award the donation.

This is the first out-of-town governmental help the Belle Glade Bicentennial Committee has received official word of, although another $2,000 has reportedly been allocated by the Florida Bicentennial Commission.

Finance chairman Ruth Wedgworth and Mrs. Hand said during the committee's final meeting before the festival when it was held Monday they had received no word from the commission on the allocation.

The $7,000, if it all comes in, is expected to put the committee over the top on the cost of the museum and the bronze statue executed, cast and delivered by Ferns Varga but more expenses are expected.

Committee member Leslie Strickland said she had received word the cost of furnishing the museum could run as high as $45,000 based on an estimated cost of $50 per square foot.

Parade chairman Lynette Thompson said she has confirmed a total of 18 floats and 20 other types of units have been entered so far and a panel of judges has been selected to pick the best of the floats.

Mrs. Thompson said the judges will be Willard C. Taylor of Taylor's Funeral Home, Wray Senterfeit of the Belle Glade Herald, Sandra Tucker of Glades Trend, the Rev. Mark O'Farrell of Belle Glade Alliance Church and John Turnbull of Florida First National Bank.

Lillian Hooker was chosen "as an alternate." The judges will pick the best of the 18 floats with prizes of $150, $100, $75, and $50 going to the top four. The last prize was donated by Case Equipment Co. of West Palm Beach, according to Mrs. Thompson.

The drawing for the painting will probably be held about 7 p.m. according to Mrs. Lynette Thompson.

Glades heart workers

Mrs. Edward Duda (second from right) was elected secretary of the Heart Association of Palm Beach County on May 20 at the association's annual meeting and awards banquet in Palm Beach.

Attending the event from Belle Glade were Edward Duda (right) and Mr. and Mrs. Guy D. Wood. Mrs. Wood is a Heart Board member.

son. Proceeds from the painting ticket sales will go toward the museum.

In another area, Dr. Robert Allen noted that when the Grand Masonic Lodge of Florida lays the cornerstone of the Will Museum, a box will be sealed inside with a variety of items commemorating the events.

Included in the box will be a copy of the festival program, a copy of the certificate naming Belle Glade a Bicentennial City, a list of donors to the museum and statue, a list of committee members, newspaper clippings covering Bicentennial events and news, a list of Belle Glade Masonic Lodge and Florida Grand Lodge officials, the names of the architect, the builder and supervisor of the museum, a 1976 penny, Bicentennial quarter and half dollars and a copy of a cornerstone laying program.

Construction of the museum is expected to be completed by Monday and those who wish will be able to take a look inside. In an emergency, such as rain, the committee decided the library should be opened for shelter.

Arrangements for first aid were also being made.

Center. Three existing centers were brought to DOR through the transfer of the Parole and Probation Commission's field staff to DOR.

The three centers are located in Tampa, Miami and St. Petersburg. They are designed to accommodate 90 youthful offenders ranging in age from 17 to 25. Presently, 77 male and eight female offenders are participating in the program. The Tampa unit is co-educational.

The multiphasic concept was designed for the borderline cases not serious enough for institutional incarceration, yet too serious for regular probation. "They are in the middle of the road between prison and probation," said Leonard Flynn, Community Supervisor for DOR.

The system of centers is designed to give the courts and probation officers an alternative to institutional or probation commitments, says Flynn. "The average resident stays in the center from 90 to 120 days. After completion of the program, he then changes to an 'Out Client Clinic,' where he receives very close street supervision while living outside the center. After a minimum of six months in the Out Clinic, the resident is then placed on standard probation," Flynn added.

"The mission of the multiphasic concept is three-fold," says Anthony Condit, Multiphasic Program Supervisor. "First, we motivate the residents to make a legitimate living. Second, we stress the importance of work, and vocational and interpersonal skills training. Third, we assist in providing an opportunity to practice those skills by working."

Residents committed to the centers work or attend school during the day and are given special educational training in the evenings at the center. These educational sessions include academic instruction ranging from high school to junior college, vocational training and group sessions stressing reality therapy concepts. In addition, the training includes staffing sessions, where the residents communicate directly with the staff of the center concerning matters of rules and regulations and personal complaints.

"The centers each have a staff of 10 people," added Flynn. "This staff also provides personal counseling during nighttime and Saturday sessions in addition to regular services."

On weekends, if the resident has met the necessary criteria and is in good standing with the center, he is allowed to go home overnight. "The program is designed to teach responsibility and improving life skills," added Flynn. "In addition to the responsibility of leaving the centers on weekends, the offenders are allowed free time in the evenings after they have earned it. They also pay $5 per day fee for room and board if they are working."

Flynn estimates the employment rate to be 95 percent at St. Petersburg, 75 percent at Tampa and 50 percent at Miami. The remainder of the residents attend school during the day.

The centers are funded through a combination of Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) funds with the state matching 10 percent.

"Presently, the three centers are operated with $450,000 allotted through LEAA," says Flynn.

"Senate Bill No. 215 calls for a total of ten additional centers to be started over the next four years in Broward, Palm Beach, Duval, Escambia, Leon, Orange, Brevard, Sarasota, Manatee and Polk Counties. "Volunteers from the community have been very helpful in the success of the centers," added Flynn. "They have helped in both providing supplies and labor as well as bicycles and jobs for the residents. In addition, other professionals have volunteered their services in the medical and psychological screening of residents."

ERCEY MIXSON WELCOMES SIDNEY SMITH TO FUNERAL HOME ...as Wayne Luce, Jim January and Dudley Barnes greet the newcomer

Sidney Smith joins Mixson Funeral Home

Ercey F. Mixson and Dudley H. Barnes, owners of Mixson Funeral Home, announced this week the addition of two new members of their staff.

Sidney Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Smith and a native of Belle Glade, brings 15 years of experience to the firm. He graduated from Worham College of Mortuary Science in Chicago, Ill. and served with Hay and Peabody Funeral Home in Portland, Me. for four years. He worked in Tampa with Duval Funeral Home prior to returning to Belle Glade. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. John Dulaney, Wayne Luce, a recent graduate of Glades Day School and son of Dr. and Mrs. Mendal Luce, has been placed in an embalmer's apprenticeship training program at the funeral home. This training requirement is one of the steps toward obtaining an embalmer's license in the State of Florida.

On the Consumer's Side

When ordering merchandise by mail, there is now some protection for you. The Federal Trade Commission has a new ruling, under which companies from whom you've ordered merchandise must notify you within 30 days of the ordering date, if for some reason, the merchandise will not be shipped within that period.

You will have the option of canceling your order if the delivery date cannot be met. The company is then responsible for providing you with a free method, such as a prepaid postcard or toll free number, of notifying their firm of your cancellation.

If the company receives no notification that you wish to cancel your order, the company may then assume that you have agreed to the delay. However, the company may only make this assumption for an addition 30 days. Delays over 60 days require your consent in writing that you have, indeed, agreed to the delay. In addition, the company must refund your money if you so request it. Your money must be refunded, by the company, within seven days when you have paid with cash, check, or money order.

There are some limitations with this ruling. First of all, the rules do not apply to services such as mail order, photo finishing, magazine subscriptions, or book or record club deliveries except for the initial shipment. The rules apply only to merchandise.

Something else that may be of interest to you is that any merchandise received by mail that you did not order may be considered a gift, and be kept without payment according to Federal Law.

"JUST THREE MORE WEEKS, JIMMY... 'C'MON, YOU CAN DO IT... JUST THREE MORE WEEKS."

Communicate

Public unions are probably too emotional an issue to really hope for anything else but it's a shame things had to start out on such an obviously sour note Monday night.

The need for and desirability of a union to request the Belle Glade Fire Department employees can be and has been questioned; especially when the number who would be represented is so small compared to the total number of city employees.

But according to the best information we have been able to get, the firefighters will have their union if they want it. Since seven of the ten eligible employees have already joined the local, the desire is self-evident.

The union, in fact, is already in existence. The only point left open for the moment is whether it should be allowed to act as a bargaining agent for the firefighter and that seems all but inevitable.

That's why we find it hard to understand why the city commission apparently wishes to dispute that right. We say apparently because just before coming to the union question Monday, the commissioners formally agreed to hire labor counsel to represent the city.

There is, of course, the possibility the firefighters may decide before it's all over they don't prefer the union. That, in our opinion, would be the most desirable way to go.

Next to that, however, would be the next best way of maintaining good relations between the union and the city...and lest they forget, the firefighters themselves are also part of the city, as are all taxpayers.

Hiring counsel before even talking to the union seems a bit like a neighbor hiring an attorney before even attempting to work out a problem with another neighbor.

One of the questions which might be answered by those initial talks would be why the firefighters feel they need a union in the first place. So far as we know, this hasn't even been discussed.

And if there's a good reason for this non-communication, it isn't evident.

Celebrate

When Belle Glade celebrates the Bicentennial of the birth of the United States of America Monday, Memorial Day will take on a special meaning.

For the first time since the 1928 hurricane swept through the Glades and left some 2,000 pioneers dead in its wake and the survivors started digging out from under the mud and debris to start all over, those victims and survivors will be memorialized by something more than words on paper or voiced over the air.

While the bronze statue executed by Feren Varga which will be unveiled during the celebration represents those pioneers, those pioneers represent as well as any single group the spirit which populated that country.

If the Glades' history is relatively new, the parallels to be drawn between it and the old west can't be ignored any more than the lessons in both stories.

The first whites to come to the Glades, as those who went west, may have been more dramatic, being basically those who for some reason wanted no part of the rest of society.

And the early history of the Glades was pretty wild and woolly, with the usual complement of moonshining, fights and what-have-you that shows up in any new settlement.

But it took the farmer's plow to make a real impression on the land and change it from a sawgrass wilderness to what it is today.

Those farmers came into an area that couldn't have been too inviting, which is probably why it wasn't settled until later than most of the country. There weren't many roads for years but that shortage was more than made up for by plentiful mosquitoes.

And if there were few luxuries, the farmers made up for that with a lot of hard work.

Pioneers haven't always had a good reputation in this country and they never had it very easy. There have been many number of reasons given for why someone would want to invest the blood, sweat, tears and toil to settle a new land but the fact remains we're in their debt for their investment.

They're the people we're saluting this Memorial Day, lest we forget.

CRACKER CRUMBS

BY DEAN JONES

If the crime of growing older and more mature is known as adultery, would the sin of staying young be known as infamy?

And if that be the case, would that be the reason there have always been so many wars on this old earth? Get a bunch of kids together who never grew up so they can squabble about something and name it all (or at least one branch of it) after their initial crime.

Let it all hang out in slogans like "To arms, to arms! The British are coming!"

Only difference today is that it's the British and the French, they're coming in Concorde and reporters and photographers are meeting them with cameras and microphones instead of muskets and blunderbuses.

Come to think of it, there was probably more pollution from the press covering the event in Washington than there was from the planes themselves. And weren't those two beautiful birds?

Course there'll be a few people wondering why we don't have our own SST to zip over to Paris and London and say "Howdy," but you gotta remember we sometimes have to be good sports and let other nations get all the gravy and public recognition.

I figure it's gonna be a remake of the old song and dance when the British came out with their Comet and the French had their Caravelle before the U of S ever got around to building our own Boeing 707.

If it does prove to be a repeat, the American version will probably make the Concorde look something like a Model T by comparison...and seems I recollect as how the Comet was finally grounded because of structural problems anyway.

Transportation's a funny thing anyway. If we'd had the communications or transportation 200 years ago that we have today, or even 184 years ago, think of the differences history would've recorded.

Old Hickory Jackson would never have fought the Battle of New Orleans and that might have meant he wouldn't ever have become President in 1828.

But it must be a weird feeling to ride in one of those flying antaeters anyway. Especially when you start to land and the whole nose starts bending down like a coon hound looking for sign.

You probably don't even know when that's happening though. But it must still be sorta weird taking off from London right after lunch and getting into Washington in time for breakfast.

And that'd play hob with your diet. Working in two breakfasts, two dinners and a supper all in the same day.

Some people don't have to worry about that and some of us should but don't but I guess that's just another area for the doctors to think about.

First there was black lung for coal miners, then there was tennis elbow for tennis freaks and now there'll be jet-pilot's pot belly.

What's the beef?

Well finally, one of the members of what is generally known as the Northeastern liberal press (quote, close quote) has at least partially admitted to what we've been thinking about the Democratic Presidential campaign for some time.

James Reston commented over the weekend that Jimmy Carter has met more newsmen, said more about what he hopes to accomplish if he is elected and been more specific than any of the other candidates.

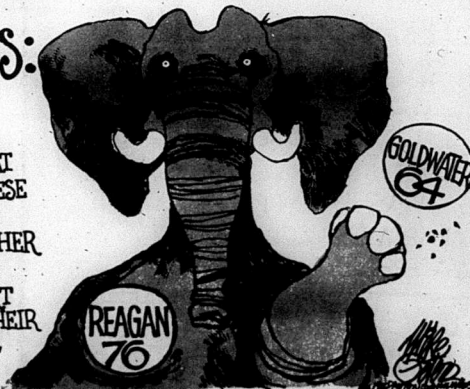

And what's the latest answer from the established "leaders"? Why, they throw Jerry Brown into the breach and Brown, the fuzziest candidate yet, has been painting Carter with the "vague brush".

Let's face it, the "leaders" don't like Carter because he's not one of them. Reston intimated as much when he said they wanted a new face but don't like an unfamiliar face.

There's a little more though that even Reston doesn't seem to admit. Considering who the "leaders" are, they probably wouldn't have Carter on a silver platter because he's Deep South. And they can't stand that.

Modernistic Cosmetology Club meets in Orlando

The Modernistic Cosmetology Club returned home from the Orange Blossom

Cosmetologist's Association last week in Orlando with the first place trophy they won in a parade.

The bicentennial parade was a focal point of the convention and while everyone else dressed for the part in red, white, and blue costumes, the local club acted the roles of slaves rebelling.

The members brought home a total of five awards, the most won by any unit at the convention. Mrs. Eudell Vereen Thomas, president, and Mrs. Louella Vickers, vice president, won trophies in the famous Club 100. Mrs. Vickers also received her class certificate in beauty culture and was first runner up in the queen contest. Willie James Potter won second place in styles of the year.

The trophies will be on display at each member's shop.

The purpose of the dance is to raise money for the club's service projects, such as mental retardation, a scholarship fund, community improvement, the special olympics and the association for retarded citizens.

The dance committee chairman is Mrs. Suzi Wallis. Tickets may be purchased from any member of the Junior Woman's Club. Table reservations may be made through Mrs. Shari Lohman at 996-6483 or 996-5525.

Engagement announced

Mr. and Mrs. Emil A. Wolf announced this week the engagement of their daughter, Janet Ann, to Timothy Harold Hoffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Hoffman of Livingston, N.J.

Miss Wolf received BA and M Ed degrees from the University of Florida and is employed by the Fulton County Board of Education in Atlanta, Ga.

The groom-elect is a graduate of Valparaiso University and is currently attending Control Data Institute in Atlanta.

The wedding ceremony will be June 26 at Stone Mountain Park, near Atlanta, and will be followed by a reception at the park.

Bicentennial bank

The Bicentennial celebration was brought to Florida First National Bank in Belle Glade this week when a 46-star flag, which had to have been made before Arizona and New Mexico were admitted to the Union in 1912, was hung on the wall by vice president James R. Kelley. The huge flag was complemented by the costumes worn by many of the bank employees. Modeling their costumes were Debbie Kelo, Lurline Brooks, Miriam Van Wicklin, Juanita Bracewell, Jerri Blakely, Jean del Valle, Maria Castro, Pat Sheppard, Karen Walden and Fern Gentes.

Electricity: How much do you know about how little it costs?

2. Twelve hrs. of light (100 watts)? _____

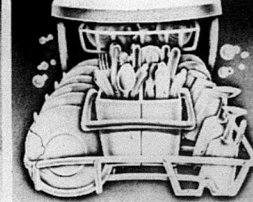

3. One average day of hot water? _____

4. Two hrs. of ironing? _____

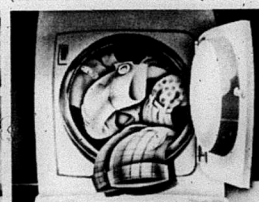

5. Eight hrs. of radio? _____

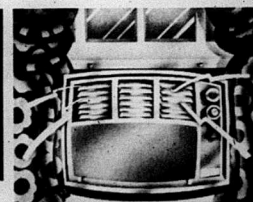

6. One hr. of dishwashing? _____

7. One average day of electric range? _____

8. One hr. of washing clothes? _____

9. Eight hrs. of room air conditioning (1/4 ton)? _____

If you took the time to complete our quiz, you're probably surprised at just how little electricity actually costs.

Because of the low cost of electricity, you can watch Kojak for less than it costs him for one of his lollipops.

You can do loads of wash (about a week's worth) for less than the cost of a single Sunday newspaper.

In short, most electrical appliances cost less to use than you'd imagine. Just check the below.

For 47 years, while the cost of practically every service and commodity was going up, the cost of electricity was constantly going down. It wasn't until 1972 and 1974 that the general rates were increased because of inflation. The only two general increases in the company's history.

However, the increase in the cost of electricity, even with the fuel adjustment charges caused by the international fuel crisis, is still practically the same as the cost of living increase from 1966 to 1976. But there is another reason why your bill has gone up. Increased usage. People are using almost 70% more electricity than they used 10 years ago.

Even so, electricity represents good value, as our quiz answers prove.

Now that you have a better idea of what electricity actually costs, and where you can control these costs, perhaps you also have a better idea of how electricity can serve you more efficiently.

Sports

Karen's Korner

Now that the boys baseball season is over and the softball season is near it is time for the Glades Women's Softball League to be shuffled from one field to another.

The league has one definite night set - we will be playing at the Belle Glade ballpark on Tuesday evening this summer, thanks to the cooperation of the Belle Glade Men's Softball League. Unfortunately, efforts to secure the field for a second night failed. After all, the women have not used the ballpark for a regular schedule in two years and the men have dominated it - we couldn't really believe that we'd step in and take charge of the field like we want to.

Gotta give a little credit to the Men's League. Although they hadly refused to turn over another night or even allowed to share the diamond, the guys did offer to help the women secure another field. That is, helping with the labor of preparing the field to play.

We really appreciate the offer - our only problem now is financial backing. It seems the next closest diamond to play softball on is the South Bay ballpark, which is badly in need of repair, and since the Women's League is definitely a non-profit organization (indeed, we can barely scrape through the end of the season), a delegation of four league members attended the South Bay City Commission to request aid in repairing the field for play.

Needless to say, the city was not too enthusiastic about the dilemma. Although the only thing the commissioners could come up with was for us to return to our league and ask for help. Well, we already knew how much our league could help, we were mainly interested in how much the city could help. The main thing the women's league has going for them is the volunteer labors.

True, the city commissioners did comment that $2 thousand had been spent towards repairing the field last year. If they spent that much money, they were "ripped off" by the person(s) they paid the money to. The only difference I can see in the field now is a new backstop and "chicken" wire stretched across the fence and I understand the wire was given to the city.

As former commissioner Woodrow O'Neal remarked last year, the field needed extensive renovations and "a thousand dollars would not touch it." Apparently two thousand dollars didn't either.

The only other ballpark available to the women is the Canal Point park, approximately 15 miles away and more for some of the women. Frankly, I like the Canal Point field and would just as soon play on it but the majority overrules. Of course, if we can't get "financial cooperation" we may end up over there anyway.

Wouldn't it be nice if to celebrate the Bicentennial (if nothing else), the Glades businesses and organizations could get together and build AT LEAST another ball field? After all, what with the Glades Youth Association (composed of three leagues), the Men's League, Women's League and the newly-formed Lassie League (girls) utilizing the one field, we do need another one.

Bass fishing improved

Bass fishing in the Belle Glade area showed some improvement over the weekend with plastic worms being the best bet for the nice catch, according to Nan Corbin of Slim's Fish Camp. Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wood of Fort Lauderdale brought in eight bass on Thursday using plastic worms.

Computer Picks Greatest Athletes

The top all-around player in professional football? The best performer in hockey? The most consistent player in women's golf?

The answers to these fan-baiting questions will be found again this year in the final results of the Segram's Seven Crowns of Sports computer competition, a unique and comprehensive analysis of the "productivity and consistency" of professional athletes under conditions of competitive pressure.

The Seven Crowns project was established by Segram's in 1974 with the object of determining - without favoritism or sentiment - the outstanding players in football, basketball, baseball, hockey (the major team sports) and tennis, golf and racing.

Results were based on computer surveys of past statistical-master, complex mathematical formulas and day-by-day analysis of player performance. Said the New York Times: "The Segram people may have triggered the first large-scale renovation of sports statistics in more than a quarter of a century." The Times further noted that "in this revolutionary approach to sports statistics, something new and exciting has been created."

Segram's backed its innovative program with over $200,000 in cash and hired the Elias Sports Bureau of New York, a famed sports statistical organization, to handle the chore of gathering, up-dating, analyzing and computing every conceivable statistic from the area of professional sports.

Winners in the seven major sports received $10,000 each. They were: Bob McAdoo, basketball; Otis Armstrong, football; Bernie Parent, hockey; Joe Morgan, baseball; Manuel Orantes and Chris Evert, tennis; Jack Nicklaus and Sandra Palmer, golf; and Willie Shoemaker, racing.

Additional football awards went to a pair of NFL linemen, "Mean Joe" Greene of Pittsburgh and Rayfield Wright of Dallas, and a Saturday. Mark Gressinger of Belle Glade reported 16 bluegills on Saturday and his partner, Stuart Stein landed a 5 1/2 pound bass on beetle spins.

John Kelly and Ricky Keel of Belle Glade reported a total of 26 pounds, 14 ounces of bass on Sunday to take first place in the Belle Glade Bassmasters fishing tournament.

WHAT'S BEING DONE

Good News In Research

Scientists supported by the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA) feel they now have sufficient data to inaugurate a new phase in their research. While continuing work in basic research areas, investigators will place greater emphasis on applied and clinical studies.

In an especially significant project, three MDA-supported researchers - Dr. Alfred Stracher, who heads the team, Dr. S.A. Shafiq and Dr. Eleanor B. McGowan - of the State University of New York's Downstate Medical Center are working with dystrophic muscle cells taken from "chickens afflicted by a similar to that found in humans. The research team is experimenting with chemical agents that cause the dystrophic cells to regenerate.

In a quarter century, the Association has budgeted more than $60 million for its worldwide research program. MDA has increased the number of its major university-based research (clinical centers to 10 and is currently funding more than 300 individual research projects in the United States and abroad.

GLADES CHURCH NEWS

THE HERALD WELCOMES NEWS ITEMS FROM YOUR CHURCH EACH WEEK.
CALL 996-2056 NOT LATER THAN TUESDAY NOON FOR PUBLICATION THURSDAY.

Missionary Sunday scheduled

The Women's Missionary Society of Mt. Zion African Methodist Episcopal Church will observe their Missionary Day Sunday.

The guest speaker for the 11 a.m. service will be Mrs. Zelma B. Johnson of West Palm Beach. Mrs. Johnson is the wife of the Rev. T. S. Johnson. She is also a teacher with the Palm Beach County School System.

The Rev. Charles Robin

son, pastor of the church, and Society President

Gladys L. Tucker invited all friends of the church to worship with them on Missionary Day.

The Rev. Paul Simmons brought the morning message Sunday at the Mt. Zion A.M.E. Church, "Looking for Another Country." His message was directed to the young people.

Rev. Simmons said that when a child is growing up, you'll always hear someone ask the question, "What do you want to be when you grow up?" and the answer is always a doctor, teacher, lawyer, etc. but never, "I want to be a Christian." He admonished them to seek Christ first and this will be a better place to live and you will have another country to go to.

He used the parable of Abraham when God told him to leave his family and friends to go to another country that he would show him. God wouldn't tell Abraham before hand but said to trust me and follow me, which he did.

The Mt. Zion A.M.E. Choir and usher number one rendered service at Hurst Chapel at 11 a.m. as guests on Women's Day.

The Junior Miss contest was held at Gladeview Elementary School with three contestants. The Elite Club members divided themselves into three groups.

Group I contestant, was Miss Juanita D. Gainsou, daughter of Mrs. Geneva H. Gainsou. Juanita, 10, is a student at Lake Shore Elementary School. She wore a long orange gown trimmed in white lace and while accessories to complete her outfit. She was escorted by William Sheldon

The affair was beautiful with the flower girls, gift bearer, flag bearer, honor guard, crown bearer and ushers. Miss Juanita D. Gainsou was crowned Miss Junior Miss for 1976-77 from Group I by Miss Effie Alexander, the outgoing queen. Members of Group I committee were Mrs. Shirley Speaks, Mrs. Herma Miller, Mrs. Maude Vereen, Mrs. Joan Bass and Mrs. Christine Lockett. Group II members were Mrs. Mary Freeman, Mrs. Betty Mor-

Alexander, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Speaks. Contestant II was Miss Veronica Yvette Johnson, 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lusine Johnson, a student of Gove Elementary School. Veronica wore a long gown of soft double knit material trimmed with white chantilly lace. Her accessories were white with pearl earrings. She was escorted by Raymond McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie McDonald.

Contestant III was Miss Sharril May Brown, 10, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Harris, a student of Lake Shore Elementary School. Sharril wore a long gown of burgundy body and pink skirt with burgundy polka dots. Her accessories were white. Sharril was escorted by her brother, Geoffrey Brown.

★ LEARNING GOOD HABITS EARLY

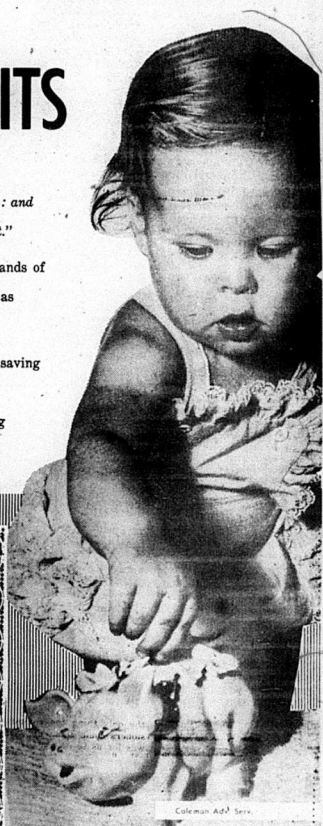

"Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it."

This statement (made by Solomon, thousands of years ago) is just as true and vital today as it was then.

Teach your children the good practice of saving for the future. Teach them to attend worship services in God's house by taking them

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny, the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Sugar

Recent firming tendencies reflected news that the largest U.S. refiner had purchased one million tons of Dominican sugar over a five-year term; continuing dryness in Western European beet areas; rumors of Soviet negotiations with the Philippines and Brazil for beneficial rains for the UK beet crop, predictions of a record large Australian sugar cane crop, presumption that the Dominican sugar deal merely represented the desire of the refiner to line up a stable source of long-term supplies in the absence of a Sugar Act. This latter consideration probably motivated the block "participation" purchases announced last month.

We anticipate a volatile market with an upside price trend inclination as we approach the heavy consumption season.

Orange Juice

The May USDA Florida orange crop estimate duplicated the previous month's report at 180.3 million boxes (including Temples), with a yield factor of 1.30 gallons of concentrate per box. Despite the need for more moisture in Florida growing areas, bearish supply-demand fundamentals continue to exert downward price pressure: (1) Net gallons of Florida concentrate packed to May 1, 1976 were 130,221,333 gallons vs. 122,419,066 gallons for the corresponding year-ago period, an increase of 6.4%. (2) Imports of foreign concentrate (to 5/1/76) at 5,801,775 gallons already exceed the total for the 1974/75 season of 5,777,113 gallons. (3) Processors' stocks of concentrate on 5/1/76 at 102,885,866 gallons, as contrasted to 94,902,679 gallons on the comparable 1975 date, an expansion of 7.9%. (4) Cumulative movement to 5/1/76 at 81,882,765 gallons is only on a par with the movement of 81,851,564 gallons recorded over the equivalent 1974/75 span. (5) Substantial expansion of consumption of chilled orange juice in recent weeks has been largely at the expense of f.o.b. offtake.

We anticipate a continuing downside price trend.

Corn

Corn prices rallied this week, responding to good domestic and export demand and prospects for tighter supplies this summer. Inspections of corn for export totaled 33.5 million bushels for the week ended May 7th, close to the high level of the preceding week and about 10 million above the comparable week of 1975. This brought the season's total through May 7th to 1,040 million bushels, nearly 300 million more than in the same period of 1974/75. The USDA increased its forecast of 1976/77 corn exports to 1.6 million bushels in the Feed Situation summary released May 10th, up 50 million from April forecast and 39% over 1974/75 exports. The forecast of domestic use was held at about 4.1 billion bushels, 15% over last year, and the carryover estimate for October 1, 1976 was reduced to 412 million, only a little larger than 1975 while stocks were the lowest since 1968. This would indicate a tightening of corn supplies again this summer as we approach the end of the marketing season.

Farmers continued to make good progress in corn planting the past week with 60% of the nation's crop planted by May 9th, nearly double the 33% planted by that time last year and also well above the 36% average for the date. Planting moved ahead rapidly in Iowa and Minnesota where wet soil and cold weather had delayed planting earlier. Cold weather has slowed the growth and caused some damage to early planted corn in some areas of the corn belt, but injury to the crop is not considered serious.

The corn price outlook appears mixed to us; with a steeper market anticipated over the near term, whereas the longer term price outlook remains unsettled.

Cattle

Relatively favorable feeding margins continue to encourage placements on feed, although apparently not at the high rate seen earlier this year. The USDA's seven (7) state cattle on feed report disclosed 7.5 million head on feed as of May 1, up 35% from the year earlier 5.6 million. Placements on feed last month of 1.6 million compare with 1.4 million a year ago, up 17% while fed cattle marketings of 1.5 million compare with 1.3 million in April, 1975. The report appears to suggest reasonably adequate fed cattle supplies into the summer and a gradual tapering off later, at a time when consumer beef demand should be buoyed by larger disposable income. For the time being, total commercial slaughter and beef production continues to run higher than a year ago, while packers seem to be adopting a more cautious attitude toward acquiring supplies. This statistical setting is expected to prove only temporary, and we look for cattle futures to register some price improvement.

Hogs and Pork Bellies

Slaughter rates remain the key to the hog market, at least over the near term. Federally inspected slaughter in the week ending May 8 of 1.3 million head was only a shade under a year earlier, nevertheless higher than expected. Moreover, consumer pork demand appears to be routine at best which suggests that unless new supplies are curtailed, packers may be inclined to pursue a cautious attitude toward acquiring inventory. We think this situation is temporary, that hog runs will be reduced over the near term, and that hog futures prices should improve further.

FARM FRONT

by Doyle Conner, Columnist

Valuable insights into how nurserymen can reduce theft of plants emerged at a seminar held recently in Appala. This is recognized as a major problem in the industry, possibly running into millions of dollars a year. Lots of ornamental plants carry a very high value, some into the hundreds of dollars.

In Dade County, the theft problem became so pressing that nurserymen have established a vigilante committee to protect themselves. Members patrol nurseries in radio-equipped cars. Attack dogs also are used as patrols.

This activity has brought on retaliation from thieves who set fire to plant houses and destroy plants of those known to be involved in the vigilante operations. But some say the vigilante work has been getting results.

There are other things which can be done, short of vigilante patrols. Nursery security can be improved in a number of ways. Plant containers can be marked in various ways to identify them if a thief is caught with stolen plants. This can be used as evidence against the thief.

Bars and mesh screens are suggested to keep thieves out of plant houses. Buildings should be in clear zones without screening vegetation around them. Floodlights can be installed for night security. Nurserymen can employ a night shift to have people around during critical night hours.

Various kinds of alarm systems are available. Closed circuit television can be used to monitor nursery spaces. Trip wires can be strung across open areas and attached to a light or a bell to give the alarm.

Above all, nursery employees should be screened with a police check. Many cases have been solved where ex-employees of a nursery were found to be stealing plants. Life detector tests should be given to all employees who handle money. All sales would be documented and sales slips match cash register receipts.

There appear to be a number of ways that plant theft can be reduced without going the vigilante method which appears to involve high risk. Nurserymen should take a more critical look at their establishments and tighten up security where possible.

IN MEMORIAM

Let us pause for a moment to commemorate the many brave men who have given their lives defending our way of life.

The way of life for which they fought can only be maintained by a constant vigilance on the part of all Americans. Not all battles are fought on foreign shores. They often have their beginning in our own community.

As we are conscientious in choosing our city and state officials as our national leaders NOW is the time to stand up and be counted as AMERICANS. Uphold the issues you believe to be of real importance to your community and do not be reluctant to speak out against those who undermine our basic rights.

Be an ACTIVE participant in your government. It is the firm foundation on which we can build a strong America. SUPPORT AMERICA as a lasting memorial to those courageous men who died so that we might have the opportunity to be free.

LIBERTY AND SUPPORT AMERICA

Our greatest heritage embodied in the Bill of Rights was written for the ages. The Declaration of Independence and the Constitution are the guiding lights to the future. We must not allow the traditions of Washington, Jefferson, and Lincoln to be lost. We must have a privilege, a right, and a duty. While we must strive to be the best citizens we can be, we must also be aware of the dangers of a government that is not responsive to the needs of its people. We must be vigilant in our support of the principles of liberty and justice for all.
